A PRISON AND PALACE.

Behold the tall and lambent spire
Irradiate with sunset fire,
Those windows smit with twilight beams,
With evening's iridescent gleams;
How they reflect the early night,
Its mingling gold and lazulite,
And how those tall transfigured towers
Bloom 'gainst the night like granite flowers;
How grandly lifts yon burnished dome
A skyey shape of fire and foam!
"What are the buildings, friend?" said I,
"That loom against the eastern sky,
And dashed with many a sunset gleam
Look like the palace of a dream?"

"Them buildings, boss," the man replied—
A sly smile in his features pale—
"You just lookout you keep outside;
Them buildings is the county jail."

Pained at this ending of my dream,
This antichmax to my theme;
I found a poultice for my pain
In this wise moralizing strain.

We all live in a county jail
Whose towering walls we cannot scale,
Though firmly, all in vain, we press
Against its granite stubbornness:
Dull, cold as fate, its walls arise
And shut our vision from the skies.
But when hope's sunlight falls upon
Its thick and heavy walls of stone,
They loom against the coming night,
Transfigured in a mystic light,
And, bathed in gold and amethyst,
The granite grows as soft as mist—
Transformed becomes the culprit's jail,
And from its towers fond banners fling
Their gorgeous windings to the gale—
It is a palace of a king!

Bride Hunting For Bridegroom.

A policeman at Portobello on going his rounds very early one morning discovered a young man on the roof of a low building, and naturally believing him to be a burglar seized him He was surprised on seeing that he was evidently in his best clothes, and still more so when on searching for burglar's tools he found only a piece of bride cake. The captive offering no explanation the officer was puzzled. Suddenly a party of young women—a bride and bridesmaid—approached in an excited state. They were evidently searching for some valuable which had been lost. On catching sight of the culprit there was a shout of "Why, here he is!" The poor bride seemed greatly moved.

During the marriage festivities he had for some unexplained reason slipped away from the scene, and his friends had divided into parties, searching high and low for the runaway. They were naturally greatly astonished that he had preferred a cold roof in winter time to the society of his charming bride. Without any more fuss they took possession of the fugitive from matrimony, who looked somewhat depressed, and bore him away in triumph.—Scotsman.

A Bewildered Sunflower.

Sir Robert Ball tells an amusing anecdote illustrating Moore's words, "The sunflower turns to her god when he sets the same look that she turned when he rose." An explorer, he said, intent on proving the truth or otherwise of this theory, took out a sunflower seed to the arctic regions and planted it there In the course of time the plant came up and flowered vigorously—just, however, at the season when the sun never sets in the arctic circle, so the poor sunflower, true to its nature, followed the process of the sun, expecting it to disappear at night in the ordinary course, but as the sun did not set at all, the flower strained itself round and round until it twisted its own head off.

A Deathbed Scene.

A Scotch lad of 20 died, leaving a widowed mother, a sister and two brothers younger than himself. He had been their main support, and while dying was full of anxieties as to what should become of them. His last words were, holding the hand of the brother next to himself in years and looking at the poor sobbing woman, "Try and do as weel's ye can."

Dimensions of the Coliseum.

The largest single structure in the world for audience and spectacular purposes is the Coliseum at Rome. It is in the form of an ellipse. Its long diameter is 615 feet, its short, 510; the height of the outer wall, 164. The arena is 281 feet long by 176 broad. The tiers of seats accommodate 100,000 spectators.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Valuable Cook.

Knowit—My cook is a treasure.

Wantoknow—You're in better luck than most people then.

Knowit—I wasn't till lately. You see, she had a row with the grocer, and to revenge herself she is very saving with the groceries. The bill is only half what it used to be —Exchange.

A Lawyer's Defense.

Your honor and gentlemen of the jury, I acknowledge the reference of counsel of the other side to my gray hair. My hair is gray, and it will continue to be gray as long as I live. The hair of that gentleman is black and will continue to be black as long as he dyes.—Exchange.

A Cabman's Retort.

Irascible Old Gentleman (putting head out of 4-wheeler that is crawling along at an unconscionable pace)—I say, cabby, we're not going to a funeral.

Cabby (promptly)—No, and we ain't goin to no bloomin fire either.—London Tit-Bits

It does not seem possible to emphasize too strongly the importance, which indeed amounts to a necessity, of freeing the body of some of its waste products by physical exercise performed daily.

Photographers have begun to use storage battery plants, which operate a ruby colored incandescent light in the darkroom, and the effect on their health has been very beneficial.

THE MINNESOTA COAL TRUST.

The Minnesota Legislature is letting the people of the State know how the coal combination keeps up prices. It seized the letter book of John J. Rhodes, manager of the trust, and dispite the efforts of the Attorney General of the State who gave an opinion that the Legislative Committee had no legal right to seize the books, and of the Circuit Court which held the chairman of the committee for contempt for not producing the letter book in Court, the Legislature retains possession of the book and is making its contents known to the public. It shows that the combination required every wholesale dealer in the State to pay into its treasury the sum of $1,000 before he was allowed to do business and wholesale dealers were prohibited from selling coal to retail dealers who did not make terms with the trust. A sample of the letters, showing the manner in which the trust conducted business, taken from the book, is given as follows:

"DEAR SIR:—Complaint is made to this bureau that you are furnishing coal to one W. Estes, a retail dealer, who maintains an office at New Boston, and has his own delivery wagon for the delivery of coal.

"I must inform you that Mr. Estes is not a subscriber to this bureau, and I would recommend that you furnish him no more coal until he becomes a regular subscriber and puts up his subscription fee the same as other retail dealers.

"T. H. Wilson, Esq., 2302 Quincy street, N. E. Minneapolis."

The trust, which was incorporated under the State law, compelled wholesale dealers to pay $1,000 for the privilege of doing business, and prohibited them from selling coal to retail dealers who did not pay a prescribed fee for the privilege. Wholesale and retail dealers had to charge a rate fixed by the trust for coal which, since last October, has been $8 85 per ton.

The ramifications of the trust extended not only throughout the State but to Pennsylvania, where the coal was produced, and from which place it was transported by water down the Ohio and up the Mississippi to Minneapolis. The Pennsylvania coal barons, threaten to shut Minnesota out from the hard coal market, unless the Legislature stops the investigation and returns the books to the coal trust.

Coal is one of the articles protected by a high tariff and the investigation now being made by the Minnesota Legislature shows how the people are being treated, in one instance, at least, by those whom they are taxed to protect.

THE APPOINTED SENATORS.

As is generally known the Legislatures of the States of Montana, Wyoming and Washington failed to elect United States Senators for the term beginning March 4, 1893, leaving those States represented by only one Senator each The Governors of those States held that the vacancies existing by reason of the failure of the Legislature to elect a Senator were such as could be filled by executive appointment under the provisions of Section 3, Article I, of the Constitution of the United States, which declares that if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the executive thereof may make temporary appointment until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancy. As the vacancies in the Senatorial representation of these States did not happen by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the Legislature, but by expiration of the terms of former Senators, during or after the time when it became the duty of the Legislatures to elect Senators, it is contended that the Governors of those States had no right to appoint Senators.

There is a wide difference of opinion between Senators on this question and the Committee of Privileges and Elections to whom the matter was referred, have submitted majority and minority reports on the subject. The chairman of the committee has signed the minority report and the question will probably be discussed at length before it is decided. As the admission or rejection of the three appointed Senators will not change the political complexion of the Senate the question of admitting them will not be decided on partisan grounds. There are Democrats and Republicans for and against seating them and a rule will now be established which will govern all such cases in future whether Senators appointed under similar circumstances change the political complexion of the Senate or not.

DISCUSSING THE SILVER QUESTION.

Senator Stewart and R. G. Horr are debating in the columns of the New York Weekly Tribune the following questions:

Should the Government of the United States at once pass a law for the free and unlimited coinage of silver?

Should this law provide for the unlimited coinage of silver dollars containing 371¼ grains of pure silver, or 412½ grains of standard silver and provide that such dollars should be legal tender for all debts, public and private?

Should the law be so framed that after its passage the "dollar" of the United States may legally consist either of a silver coin containing 412½ grains of standard silver, or 25.8 grains of standard gold, and that each of these dollars should be treated as the standard of values in the United States?

Mr. Stewart is to sustain the affirmative of the foregoing questions and Mr. Horr takes the negative.

The articles are copyrighted and therefore cannot be reproduced in other papers. Of course from a Western standpoint, Senator Stewart, so far, has decidedly the best of the argument, but whether the goldmen concede that fact is extremely doubtful. However that may be, the fact that the foregoing questions are being discussed in an avowed goldbug sheet is encouraging.

Matters of Interest From Home and Abroad.

A DARING BANK ROBBERY.

Cleveland's Right to the Presidency Disputed.

DR. ST. CLAIR ASKED TO RESIGN.

They Plead Guilty.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 27.—This afternoon Harry McLaughlin and Jerry Desmond, alias John Ward, pleaded guilty to a charge of murder and both were sentenced by Judge Cope to life imprisonment at San Quentin.

McLaughlin and Desmond were arrested February 1st for the murder of Alfred E Hare, a station agent of the Pacific Coast Railroad Company at Los Olivos, this county. The evidence, though circumstantial, pointed strongly to the two men and there was little doubt of their guilt. To-day they decided after a consultation with their attorneys to plead guilty. McLaughlin made a sworn statement in Court testifying that he was the one that did the shooting, but claimed that it was accidental The Court decided that both were equally guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced them as stated.

The murder was committed on the night of July 31st, Hare was alone in the office between 7 and 8 o'clock when two men entered with their faces hidden, but the masks were made out of grain sacks. Hare was ordered to throw up his hands, but started toward the telegraph instrument. One of the robbers shot him immediately. Death resulted in a few hours afterward. The murderers were captured by Sheriff Broughtons and posse the next night.

Daring Bank Robbery.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., March 27.—The Caney Valley Bank at Caney, Kas., was robbed late this afternoon and $4,000 secured by the robbers. The job is said to have been done by two men named Starr and Newcomb. Both men escaped.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Starr and Newcomb entered the bank when no customers were present, and, leveling revolvers at the cashier and three other employes, demanded all the money on hand. Their argument was unanswerable, and something over $4,000 was handed out. The robbers then backed out of the door, after the parting assurance to the bank people that they would meet sudden death if any outcry was raised. The men hurried to their horses, and had a good start on the way to Indian Territory before the bank people recovered from their fright sufficiently to give the alarm.

As soon as the matter became known a posse was organized and started in pursuit, but up to to night the robbers were not found.

Starr is one of the notorious Dalton gang, and only recently escaped from jail, where he was imprisoned for complicity in the sensational Coffeyville robbery last fall. Newcomb is also a notorious criminal.

An Old Official Asked to Resign.

WASHINGTON, March 27th.—Dr. F. C. St. Clair, for more than twenty-seven years the head of the Consular Bureau of the State Department, has been removed. Late Saturday afternoon Secretary Gresham sent a note to Dr. St. Clair notifying him that he desired him to tender his resignation at once, and, further, that his assistant, W. G Bacon of North Carolina, had already been appointed as his successor.

Dr. St. Clair never before dreamed that his official conduct had been called into question. He sought an explanation from the Secretary The latter is said to have told him that he had been guilty of holding back official papers on the score that they were personal letters, and for this offense his resignation was requested. These papers, it is said, contained charges against a certain United States Consul in Germany, and, instead of being treated as private by Dr. St Clair, they should have been sent in regular department round.

Dr. St. Clair produced the letters in question, which he claimed to be his private correspondence, but he did not succeed in convincing the Secretary that they were other than official papers.

Cleveland's Right to the Presidency Disputed.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Mr. Cleveland's right to the Presidency was disputed to-day by Mrs. Thurston an old lady who not only considers herself owner of the United States, but of the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland as well.

Mrs. Thurston was among those who shook hands with the President at the public reception in the East room this afternoon, She grasped Mr. Cleveland's hand in a firm grip and poured forth her story much to his embarrassment. Mrs. Thurston said she wanted Mr. Cleveland to take charge of her possessions under a deed of trust to be handed over when she received her annuity of several hundred thousand dollars which will enable her to live in a style befitting her rank and possession. Her importunities for a private audience to arrange the details were politely parried and after keeping the line waiting for five minutes Mrs. Thurston moved on with the parting remark that she would return.

Weather Forecast.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The forecast for Nevada is fair weather and cooler by Tuesday night.

Alarmed at the Indians.

PHŒNIX, A. T., March 27.—A report reached Phœnix this evening that a band of Apaches heavily armed are 80 miles from the reservation and but 32 miles from Phœnix on Cave creek. Eight who were seen in the settlement were nancy and entered the houses, demanded provisions and everything they wanted. The alarm was sent to the settlement below and 15 armed men went to the rescue. The Indians said they had no permit, needed none and were going to Colorado river. They also stated there were ten more of the party. Many other horse tracks were seen. The Indians are well armed and even the children carried pistols and cartridge belts They went west toward New river. Governor Murphy will telegraphed the Indian agent at San Carlos. The Indians said there were many sick on the reservation and they wanted to get away. The citizens of Cave creek think they are Kid and his band going to join the Mojaves near the White Hills.

Burned to Death.

MCMANNVILLE, Or., March 27.—John Gibbon, a young farmer, was burned to death below Dayton last night. He came home finding his house burning and supposed his wife and children were still in the building and he rushed into the smoke and flames. After bursting in the door he was suffocated and burned to death before he could be rescued.

Peculiarities About Tramps.

"A fact about your professional vagrant or tramp is that they never want to go back to the place from where they were sent," says a penitentiary superintendent. "For instance, if one is sent in from along the Susquehanna road, on his discharge he usually requests to be sent north, east or south, or any direction that will take him away from that in which he was apprehended.

"Only the other day a tramp sent from Otsego begged to be sent to Hudson. He begged so hard that I gave him a ticket to Hudson. The next day he was back again. 'They pulled me as soon as I stepped from the train,' he said. County officers, you see, are always on the lookout for tramps because of the mileage received for bringing them here. Work? No, they wouldn't show any inclination or desire for work if they had to lay in the penitentiary for months. But we compel them to earn their keep, very much to their disgust. Usually I set them to work cane seating chairs."—Albany Journal.

THE SILVER CAUSE.

Sir Morsten Frewen on the Great Bi-Metallic Discussion in England.

Rocky Mountain News.

LONDON, March 3, 1893.

It would not be easy to exaggerate the importance of the late division in the house of commons, on Sir Henry Meysey-Thompson's bi-metallic resolution. The fact that each of our great parties issued an official "whip" to its supporters, defines the future of the silver question in England, as a party question, and as such it will now be fought out. It marks the majority against silver as conclusive of the failure of the Brussels conference, and whether Mr. Balfour's conjecture is absolutely correct that Lord Herschel's commission on the Indian silver question, is unable to agree upon any report whatever, at least all the gossip of the lobbies goes to show that the government means to leave the rupee to "find its natural level," the Indian mints will not be closed.

Mr. Labouchere alone was able to extract from so "dismal" a subject as the currency, material for a witticism. He declared to a friend in the lobby that while love and the silver question fill the lunatic asylum, he had objected to the time of the house being wasted on abstract discussions of so dangerous a kind; but he thought all things considered, free love was more moral than "free silver."

GLADSTONE'S THEORY.

But what is all important and extremely discouraging is the attitude of the Gladstonian "item" and also the Irish vote. Against Mr. Gladstone's attitude and that of his chancellor of the exchequer no word can be said; for Mr. Gladstone no silver question exis's; he protested that gold, unlike silver, was entirely stable standard of value, and while declaring that we had arrived at a "gold famine" in 1849 which was averted only by the direct "intervention of Providence" when in 1850 the rivers of California ran gold, yet there was no outward and visable difference between a "gold famine," and gold plenty for he expressly stated that prices did not rise after 1850 more than 3 per cent. If the facts and figures universally admitted, show a rise of 35 per cent between 1849 and the "crime of 1873," so much the worse for the facts. The theory, according to Mr. Gladstone, is complete gold never varies!

DOES NOT BELIEVE IT.

Such is Mr Gladstone's position; there is no doubt whatever but that he entirely disbelieves that the price of Irish grain and bullocks have fallen at all since 1873, and if the rupee of India has depreciated in terms of gold, then also Indian prices must have risen correspondingly; again if the facts oppose this theory so much the worse for the facts! Accordingly there is not a line of recognition in all his speech that there is to-day a "silver question" at all. It was easy to note to Mr. Leonard Courtney's face, that he was in revolt against the brilliant inaccuracies of the prime ministers speech, and when Mr. Gladstone sat down after fifty minutes of valuable misinformation, had Mr. Courtney as he desired "caught the speakers eye" we should have secured the ex-editor of the Times, who is one of Lord Herschel's commission, some statements and admissions of great significance: But Mr. Goschen was already on his feet and we had a balanced speech of great interest and value.

GOSCHEN'S SPEECH.

"My right honorable friend has pointed to the wrong to be done to the creditor classes, but what about the wrong already done the debtors?" Then there came an allusion to the "bonus" afforded to the wheat and cotton exports from Asia by the falling exchanges; then still more pregnant was the remark, "you talk about tampering with the standard, but do you not see that the standard has already been tampered with." Then Mr. Goschen returned to the Paris monetary conference of 1878, "at that time a member of that conference I recognized how inevitable was a fall in prices, because of the demonetizing of silver by various nations."

It was a speech, timid if you will, and uncertain as to the immediate remedy, but a speech on the whole worthy of the author of a standard work on the foreign exchanges.

During this speech, indeed during the entire debate, the house was packed; even the ladies' gallery was well filled; in the peers' gallery I noticed among others Lord Cross, the late Secretary of State for India, Lords Spencer and Lord Reay, the late Governor of Bombay, and one of our commissioners to the Paris conference of 1882; also the Dukes of Devonshire, Fife and St. Albans; a few minutes before 6 o'clock there was a slight sensation on the Conservative benches, and I think all of us who were watching with anxiety the trend of events, felt a great lightning of the load when Mr. Arthur Balfour, despite his doctor's injunction appeared in his place next Mr. Goschen and Mr. Henry Chaplin.

When the chancellor of the exchequer, ingens cui-lumen ademptum, had concluded his ponderous oration, not without a successful attack upon the inconsistencies he had discovered in Mr. Goschen's "record" on this question, the hands of the clock were pointing to ten minutes to midnight; Mr. Balfour filled those precious minutes with a very delightful account of the silver faith that is in him.

A DESPICABLE TRICK.

But a few minutes before 11 it was noticed that the Irish benches had emptied, and very soon it was known that the entire party had been summoned by the government "whip" to one of the committee rooms and that an animated debate was taking place with closed doors. Mr. Blake, the ex-leader of the Canadian Liberals, was busy denouncing silver pretty much on the Sherman lines, and Mr. Gladstone had personally demanded the entire Irish vote against silver; thirty, at least, of the Irish members had agreed to support silver, and Archbishop Walsh's pastorial declaring that the silver question was at the root of the Irish land difficulty was in every man's hand, fresh from the printers; but home rule before all. Mr. Gladstone had made it a matter of "confidence," and at 11:30 to my intense disappointment Mr. Davitt came to me under the gallery with the news that the Irish would vote solid with the government. It was all in vain that I pointed out to Mr. T. P. O'Connor how anxious both parties in America were that good should come out of the Brussels conference, and that while America had done so much, nay, everything for the Irish cause, this was the first and only favor America had asked in return. The expostulations was courteously received, but no good came of it. So much for the Irish reed.

LED BY GLADSTONE.

Now, as to the Gladstonian Liberals numbers of them on the list, large subscribers to the funds of the bimetallic league, men who have been declaring for years past that the anti-silver legislation of 1873 was a "fraud and a crime," and not in complete ignorance as in Mr. Gladstone's case, that there is a currency question, but men who have been the very pioneers of the silver movement in this country. But what a game is politics! These men who profess their belief in the "fraud" either abstained from voting or actually voted with the government! What then are these men, their eyes open both as to cause and effect, what but accessories after the act! Scarcely half a dozen Gladstonians voted in the minority. Greenfell, Howell, Lyell, Everett, the remainder, abstained from voting.

Considering the speeches made—considering the position of the Brussells conference, had the men pledged to support silver been permitted to vote, it is impossible to say how far reaching would have been the moral effect of a majority last night against the government. But as things are the failure is indefinitely disastrous, and it leaves us with a nasty taste in our mouths—the recognition that after ten years of work we cannot rely upon the loyalty of those who have professed to be out fellow workers. It would almost seem that things must be worse still before they are better. Nor is there much comfort in the news from Washington. Yours faithfully,

MORETON FREWEN.

A New Incandescent Lamp.

Philip K. Stern of Buffalo, N. Y, has invented an incandescent lamp that lays over all others for novelty. In this lamp the loop is of pure and solid glass, and the filament is imbedded in the middle of the glass. There can, therefore, be no loss of substance, for though the carbon particles may vibrate, yet no particle can be lost. There it is, entombed in the glass, and not an atom can escape, and there it must stay; and it would seem that no matter how long the current vibrates through it, it will retain its substance and pour forth light. There is no vacuum in the lamp; on the contrary, air will be pumped in rather than out to prevent the expansion of the glass when heated. The evidence of a vacuum will put the lamp out of conflict with Edison's in that respect. The Stern lamp will not burst like ordinary electric lamps when struck and throw splinters of glass in one's face. This lamp is said to be a wonderful light-giver, and it is said that a factory will soon be built at Buffalo with a daily capacity of 25,000 lamps.

Going to the World's Fair.

A special train containing the Japanese World's Fair Commissioners and their retinue and the exhibit from Java passed through Reno yesterday morning. Java is an island of the Indian archipelago and a colony of the Netherlands. It is completely under the control of the Dutch, though the native kingdoms, comprising only a small part of the island, retain a nominal existence. The principal exports are, coffee, sugar, rice, tea, india rubber, camphor and rattan, and their value is about $50,000,000 a year. The Arabs conquered the country in the fifteenth century, since which time the principal religion has been Mahomedan.

Twenty-one freight cars were required to take their exhibit to the World's Fair, and doubtless their display of spices and tropical products will not be excelled at the great exhibition.

Local Railroad Changes.

Various changes have been made among the working force of the V. & T., which went into effect to-day. Pearly Plane, until date yardmaster in this city has been superseded by Wm. McClusn, formerly conductor of the ore train. Jersey McDonald, second engineer of the ore train, takes the Virginia yard engine, vice Wm. Woodruff, who will fire for Jersey. The regular ore train has been laid off, and the Virginia yard engine will transport ore from the Comstock to the river mills. Maurice Lonegan, first engineer of the ore train, has superseded Charley Thrall on the Carson yard engine, and Charley will fire for Maurice. The disbandment of the ore train will result in a slight curtailment of the working force.—Chronicle.

A GOOD TIME COMING.

Contemplated Railroad Extension That Will Benefit Nevada.

The Virginia Chronicle learns from official sources that Nevada is about to experience a boom from an entirely unexpected quarter. The Carson & Colorado Railroad is to be extended from its present terminus at Keeler, not to Mojave, as has frequently been stated, but to Los Angeles, and from there to tidewater at Port Ballona, situated three miles south of Santa Monica. But this is only to be the first move in the undertaking. At this end the Virginia & Truckee Railroad is to be changed into a narrow-gauge from the Mound House to Reno. At the latter place connection is to be made with the Nevada-California-Oregon Railroad, which will be extended north to The Dalles, Or.

This scheme is by no means new. It has often been considered and frequently discussed before. Nor will it take long to complete. Those who are in a position to know say that within two years through sleepers will run from The Dalles, Or., to Port Ballona, Cal.

This road will be of incalculable benefit to Eastern Oregon, Western Nevada and Southern California. It will enable the people of those sections to ship their products East by any transcontinental route they choose, and when wishing to travel from Oregon to Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico or Mexico and to the South, they need not pay tribute to the Central Pacific nor San Francisco.

As is well known, the Southern Pacific already has a railroad from Roseville to Portland, Or., and from its own report we learn that it is one of their best-paying properties. It runs in opposition to the steamer lines, and is about 100 miles inland.

This new line is near 300 miles inland, and is expected to be first-class property from the start. Carson is to remain the headquarters for the general office and repair shops. It will not be long, therefore, when the residents of that place, who look quite gloomy on account of dull times at present, will wear smiles and look well because they will be doing well.

A Reward Offered.

The first of a series of rifle matches between the Oroville (Cal.) Guard and a team made up from the second, third and fourth classes of the Carson Guard, the crack or first class shots of the latter company being barred, twenty-five men each, took place Sunday, and the Carson team was defeated by thirty-seven points.

A Life Work.

Mr. Sutherland got hold of a prodigious Clarendon and Burnet and made it the richest and most extensive pictorial history in existence or ever likely to be in existence. He found nearly 19,000 prints and drawings for it and no less than 731 portraits of Charles I, 518 of Charles II, 552 of Cromwell, 273 of James II and 420 of William III. If, remarks Mr. Percy Fitzgerald, we only think how few are the portaits of Charles I, and these mostly copies after Vandyke, we shall have an idea of the labor and exploration necessary to gather up the 731. Think also of the pains and cost in cleaning, "laying down," "insetting," and "inlaying" these portraits, the binding, arranging, etc., and we shall not be surprised to learn that this folly occupied the fanatical Sutherland such a lengthy portion of his life.

When finished, it filled 67 huge volumes and had cost £12,000! We may conceive all the visitings of print shops, the turning over boxes of prints, the groveling among winds and lanes, the correspondence and the endless paying of money! To give a finish to his labors a catalogue was prepared of all the engravings. This filled two great quartos. At Sutherland's death the work was carried on by his widow, who is reported to have given as much as £80 for a single plate!—Temple Bar.
